JAMES REED

"A tree that it takes both arms to encircle grew from a tiny rootlet"

A wide-angle photograph of a large, historic stone building, likely a university hall, featuring a central tower with a clock face and a green lawn in the foreground. The building has multiple stories with arched windows and a crenellated roofline. A paved path leads from the bottom center towards the building's entrance. The sky is blue with scattered white clouds.

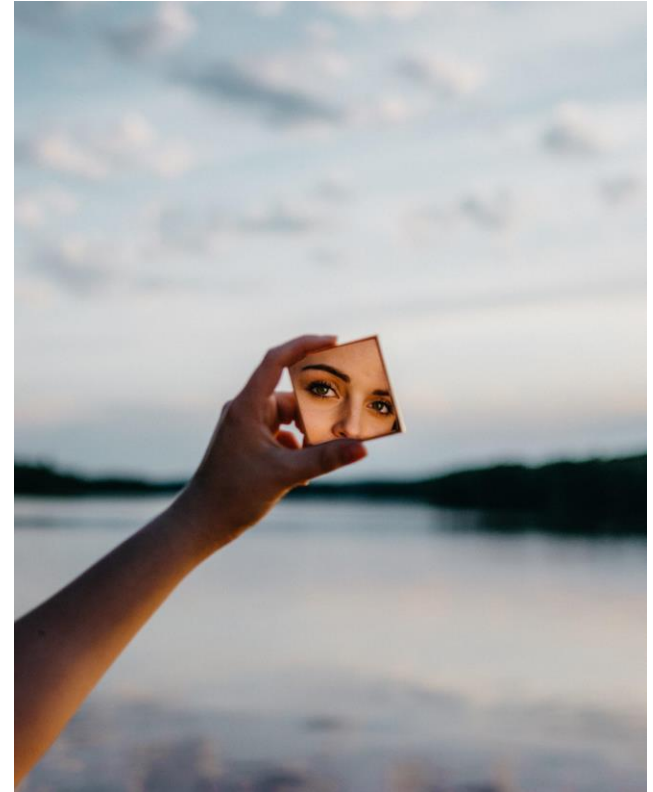

“A pagoda of nine stories was erected by placing small bricks.”

“A journey of three thousand miles begins with one step.”

Lao Tzu, from the Tao Te Ching
